Play threads area's black history

By Susan Walden

The rich history of North Brevard's black community comes alive in a play at the Emma Parrish Theater Feb. 13-14.

Thanks to numerous interviews over the years administered by historian Roz Foster, "Footprints – a Black Anthology" by Mary Purdy will finally come to fruition and give people a flavor of what it was like to live in Merritt Island, Titusville and Mims in the past 100 years.

"It's a tribute to those common people who worked hard every day and shaped the community," said Foster.

"My interest began when I was working in the LaGrange cemetery and saw a few prominent names of black families. I went to the (old) newspapers but couldn't find information on the black community back then."

She knew she had to go out into the community and get the information firsthand. With pen, paper and recorder, she began interviewing people in the black community in the mid-1990s knowing that if the history wasn't written down and weaved into the annals of the area, it would be lost. After attending an historic preservation course through the state, a class she refers to as a "godsend," Foster put her education to use with the most important item she extracted from the course – after gathering the history don't just sit it on a shelf.

Foster spoke with about 35 people, some of whom now have passed away, as they recounted their life and their relative's lives.

"I was at Cuyler Park in Mims every Thursday afternoon for people to come by and talk. I had a lot of wonderful interviews with people who worked in the citrus and turpentine industries. They talked about work and traditions, their old-time medicinal practices, education, their neighborhoods, formation of their churches and church traditions, their very spiritual life and strong faith in God, even where they were baptized."

Through her recordings and writings, Purdy, a local playwright, sifted through it all and pulled out a common thread to sew a play together.

"The most common topic was education. It was very important for the black community to be educated.

Not to give too much away, but the play highlights a few prominent families such as the Warrens, Campbells, Moores and a well-loved man and his mule named Dennis Sawyer and Maude, who among other things took people across the river on his boat.

The Campbells, who settled in North Merritt Island, started the Clifton Schoolhouse.

The Warrens also had a schoolhouse and both families were connected. The Campbells came to the area in the 1870s as freed slaves and acquired 180 acres of land through a land grant that became a citrus grove.

Mover and shaker Sawyer lived on Merritt Island across from Cocoa. "He started a school there which was called Merritt Junior High and he also began the Mount Olive Church. Sawyer even provided a cemetery and was a 33rd degree mason. He was fondly remembered for walking around with Maude," said Foster. "He grew and sold vegetables and was the very first black exhibitor in the World Fair. He showed his vegetables in the Florida hall of the 1933 fair in Chicago."

Local actors will act, sing and dance in the play. "We'll even have some gospel and audience participation," she said. Foster gives thanks and praise to Purdy for pulling it together. "She really captured the heart, soul and essence of these people."

Having the play in February is no accident. The month celebrates Black History Month, Feb. 12 is the 100th anniversary of the birth of the NAACP and President Abraham Lincoln's birthday.

The community can see "Footprints" Feb. 13, 7:30 p.m. or at the matinee Feb. 14, 4 p.m. Tickets are $14 – orchestra, $12 – balcony; seniors and students pay $10.

Wuesthoff hosts Wall Street Journal columnist, author at annual gala event

Wuesthoff Health System Foundation will host Wall Street Journal columnist and author, Jeffrey Zaslow, as keynote speaker for the healthcare systems seventh annual gala event Feb. 21 at BCC Melbourne campus.

The opening reception begins in the King Center Rotunda with appetizers, drinks and entertainment. The main event follows in BCC's gymnasium. Following the theme, "Feel the Beat," the gala will be an up-tempo evening of New York-style entertainment, dancing and gourmet food.

The evening's highlight will be the keynote address by internationally-known speaker Jeffrey Zaslow, a Wall Street Journal columnist and co-author of the international best seller, "The Last Lecture" is known as a journalist who focuses on life transitions, and has historically attracted wide media interest for his column, Moving On. "The Last Lecture," a book based on a lecture of a Carnegie Mellon professor, Dr. Randy Pausch, has now been translated in 27 languages with more than 2.3 million copies sold in the U.S. alone.

After attending the lecture of Dr. Pausch, Zaslow wrote his next column on the professors 'last lecture' presentation which sparked a phenomenon of interest eventually leading to tens of millions of people viewing the lecture on the internet and television. Pausch, who knew he was dying of pancreatic cancer, gave the inspirational lecture knowing it would be his last. In the end, the professors 'last lecture' and Wall Street Journal column lead him and Zaslow to collaborate to write the book before Pausch's death.

In 2008, Zaslow received the Distinguished Column Writing

Award from the News York Newspaper Publishers Association. His columns have also appeared in TIME Magazine, and USA Weekend.

Zaslow's many television appearances include The Tonight Show, Oprah, Larry King Live, 60 Minutes, The Today Show, and Good Morning America.

"We are proud to have Jeffrey Zaslow as our keynote speaker for this year's gala," said Wuesthoff Foundation president, Dorothy Allen. "We are also excited to announce that this year's gala will benefit Wuesthoff's comprehensive cardiac programs and services. Recognized nationally for our heart and stroke services, every dollar we raise will help to sustain and grow those quality cardiac services."

"And as always, we are thankful for the community support we receive each year for our gala event," added Allen.

The Wuesthoff Gala is collaboration between Wuesthoff Foundation and the community to promote health education, and raise additional funds to continue to provide the highest quality care. The past two years were dedicated to raising awareness of early detection of breast cancer while also expanding breast cancer technology. This year's gala will place prevention and early detection of heart disease at the forefront, as well as support the latest in treatment technology.

For more information on the event, contact Wuesthoff Health System Foundation at (321) 637-2606; individual tickets for the gala event can be purchased for $250 per person.

Help save our music education in schools

My View

By Susan
Walden

There is a terrible crisis unfolding in our schools.

Music.

With the recession and its cutbacks – possibly $70 million in Brevard's schools alone – the Florida school systems are in danger of cutting vital programs and one of them is music.

We need your help in telling our legislators how important it is and what it means to the students. Have you ever gone to one of our school's performances? If you haven't you should. It's free and you will be absolutely amazed how great these children are – even in elementary school. It's thanks to the great music teachers we have in Brevard.

Education isn't just reading, writing and arithmetic. The arts – visual and music – in concert with other school subjects augment students' whole beings – from their education to their character.

Music is an instrument of learning that cannot be absent in the orchestra of education. It simply cannot. I've penned that phrase, now please use it to contact your legislators.

Brevard County is known throughout Florida for its excellent music programs. In fact, the county has more music demonstration schools than any other county. Brevard is leading the way with diligent teachers who work even nights and weekend teaching our children for free, by the way, how to play instruments and sing. It begins in the elementary schools where they are introduced to various instruments.

My sons have greatly benefited by music education. One is a professional musician now and the other is on the road to becoming one.

Music is vital to education. Here are a few statistics:

- ▶ It plays a huge part in developing children's intellect. The arts are one of the six areas college boards recognize as essential for children to thrive in college.

- ▶ In a National Education Longitudinal Study in 1988, music students achieved more academic honors and awards than their non-music peers.

- ▶ Arts education aids students in skills needed in the workplace: flexibility, the ability to solve problems and communicate; the ability to learn new skills, to be creative and innovative, and to strive for excellence.

- ▶ Music student score higher on college entrance exams – on average, 53 points higher in verbal and 39 more in math.

- ▶ Music keeps children off drugs, the streets, alcohol and other deviant behavior.

- ▶ A study in Sweetwater, Calif., showed that middle and high school students in music and visual arts had much higher grade point averages than their counterparts.

Center, Melbourne.
Legislators will be there.*

- ▶ Ever heard of the Mozart Effect? It indicates a strong correlation between music education and spatial-temporal reasoning (putting things together) and higher math scores.

- ▶ Music is an economic plus in society; second only to the aerospace industry, it is the most lucrative national export.

- ▶ Music enriches communities because musicians have intellectual curiosity companies need to stay competitive.

- ▶ The arts generate an estimated $37 billion with a return of $3.4 billion in federal income tax.

- ▶ Students of lower socioeconomic status who took music lessons in middle and high school increase their math scores and other subjects by 40 percent.

- ▶ Schools with the highest academic achievement spend 20 to 30 percent of the day with emphasis on music.

- ▶ More music majors than any other group of grads go to medical school.

- ▶ Music teaches students commitment and responsibility, which are essential for becoming successful adults.

Unfortunately, those who don't know the facts find music and visual arts an easy victim on the chopping block.

You can help – even if you don't have a child or grandchild in school.

Create momentum. If not you, then who? Get a few friends together and create a music advocacy group.

Individually, through business or in a group, contact our legislators by calling, visiting, e-mailing or writing a letter today.

School Board needs input in superintendent search

The Brevard Public Schools' Board has initiated a search for a new superintendent due to the retirement of Dr. Richard DiPatri, effective July 1.

To assist in this process, the board has retained the services of Ray and Associates, Inc., a search firm that specializes in assisting boards which are seeking superintendents.

The board is looking for input from constituents and staff of the school district to help identify characteristics the district finds important in the new superintendent. The information will be forwarded to the search firm and will become a part of the selection process.

Input may be given in the following ways. Community and staff members may meet with a consultant at one of the open forums held Feb. 12-13 from 7:30-8:30 a.m. and in the evening from 7:30-8:30 p.m. at Palm Bay High School auditorium (101 Pirate Lane, Melbourne), Area IV Office training rooms (800 Lane Ave., Titusville) and the Educational Services Facility (2700 Judge Fran Jamieson Way, Viera) in the Board Room. Copies of a form called Qualities Desired in the New Superintendent will be available at each of these constituent meetings.

Interested persons can also visit the BPS Web site at www.brevardschools.org to find the Qualities Desired in the new superintendent form, which is available for input online through close of business on Feb. 13.

One of the consultants from Ray and Associates, Inc. will present an overview of the search process and criteria for the board's consideration at the School Board meeting of Feb. 24.

The South Brevard Historical Society presents a program called, "Growing Up Cracker – Nancy Platt on Her Florida Ranching Heritage," interviewed by Margaret Broussard of Forever Florida Feb. 14, 3 p.m. at the Melbourne Public Library, 540 E. Fee Ave., Melbourne.

The Platts were early settlers of Central Brevard County and drove cattle the length of the Brevard and beyond during the pre-1949 open-range cattle days. After the state passed a law that stock had to be fenced in, cattlemen began to acquire large amounts of ranchland. The 4000-acre Platt family ranch west of Melbourne is currently seeking annexation to the city.

Nancy will be interviewed in friendly conversation with Margaret Broussard, who is also a daughter of a Florida pioneer ranching family. Hear about horseback adventures, Melbourne's history, the Silver Spurs Rodeo, Judge Platt and others as Nancy brings us stories of her cracker childhood in this special local history presentation. Historical photos will also be on display.

Get your rebate

Brevard County Animal Services and Enforcement reminds companion animal owners to take advantage of the Spay/Neuter Rebate Program. This program assists Brevard County residents by contributing $25 toward the cost of having pets altered, in an effort to reduce the homeless animal population of the county.

Residents must complete an application and meet the criteria to be eligible for monetary assistance for sterilization of their pet dogs and/or cats through this rebate program.

The rebate applies to "owned" companion animals only. No more than four animals per year/per household can qualify for the rebate program. Pets must have current Brevard County animal license tags and current rabies vaccinations to be eligible for the program.

Rebate applications are available at North Animal Care and Adoption Center, 2605 Flake Rd. in Titusville and participating veterinary clinics.

For more information and complete details on this program, call 321-255-4346 or 321-617-7503.

Our Friends Need A Home!!!

Hi everyone! My name is Bear Bear. I am a Shar Pei/ Chow mix. My birthday is January 20th, 2007. I was brought to the SPCA because my owners could no longer afford to care for me. I am a very sweet, shy boy. The girls here are trying to get me all cleaned up and ready to go home with you. I am missing some hair on my back and tail due to flea allergies. I was an outside dog my whole life and as a result, I have heartworms. I am good with dogs and cats. I would love to get a forever home with a family who truly cares about me. I want to be wanted. Please come in and rescue me...I promise, I wont let you down.

My name is Derby and my birthday is 9/15/2007. I was brought to the SPCA with my brothers because unfortunately our owner was sick and could no longer take care of us. I was adopted out to a new home but my new owners no longer could take care of me so I was brought back here to the SPCA. I am very active and I love to play with all kinds of toys. I am looking forward to going to a nice home where I will be taken care of and loved. Maybe this time...Ill get to stay!

PLEASE CALL 267-8221 FOR INFORMATION, OR VISIT US AT 455 CHENEY HWY. (SR50)

Ask Chris Sleepless in Titusville

Dear Christian Allen,

My wife tells me that I need to go to a salon to have my hair cut. I have always just walked in a barber shop or where ever was open and convenient.

She says that a stylist will give me a different haircut than a barber. Is that true? Is she right about that?

Just trying to settle this once and for all.

Dear Hairy,

I must first give you some advice on whom is right. She is right, always right, never been wrong, no one person has ever in the history of being right been any more right than she is.

Whew! Repeat that to her for the next three weeks. In fact Barber's and Stylist have to go through the exact same rigorous training in the art of haircutting. The only difference is the cosmetologist remain in school longer to learn about the other services given in a salon. Many new salons have barbers and stylist working side by side. You don't always need a designer tag to look your best, but if quality is your concern then I would say absolutely you get what you pay for.

Taking another "Pole",
Christian Allen

To Your Health

Red yeast rice lowers cholesterol

If you've been told your cholesterol levels are moderately high, then you may want to know about a natural supplement called Red Yeast Rice. The results from studies suggest it may reduce total cholesterol levels.

In a study reported in the February 1999 American Journal of Clinical Nutrition the participants who received the red yeast rice over a 12-week period had a significant reduction in total cholesterol, LDL (bad) cholesterol, and triglyceride (fatty substances that can accumulate in the blood stream and damage the blood vessels) levels compared with those that had a placebo. HDL (good) cholesterol did not change in either group.

So what is red yeast rice? It is a red yeast that grows on a particular type of rice.

This yeast contains naturally-occurring substances called monacolins, which lower cholesterol by inhibiting cholesterol production in the liver in the same manner as prescription statin drugs according to Dr. David Heber, Director of the UCLA Center for Human Nutrition.

For anyone who wants to try Red Yeast Rice, it is available in capsule form at your local health food store. As always, talk to your doctor before taking natural supplements.

TREATMENT FOR DEFORMED TOES

The major cause of adult like wearing shoes with a wider toe box, padding, orthotics and splints, can be successful in easing the condition. Conservative treatment—which means non-surgical steps—can only relieve symptoms. It won't correct a deformity. Tenoplasty and capsulotomy are the names of two surgical procedures that involve release of a tightened tendon or the lengthening of it. These procedures allow some types of deformed toes to straighten.

See a podiatrist immediately if you have a painful, deformed toe. When addressed early, conservative treatment, Talk with your podiatrist about options available to you if you suffer from deformed toes.
